

At Fetch and More, we understand that the Coronavirus/COVID-19 crisis has taken its toll on the country. Everyone from first responders to teachers, nurses, and front line workers in various industries find themselves suffering from depression, PTSD, anxiety, and other mental health disorders. The number of mental health emergency calls has never been higher. The suicide rate in the country is at an all time high, and prescriptions for various antidepressants and benzodiazepines has also never been higher.

Fetch and More is here to help. We will work with you to acquire and train a Psychiatric Service Dog who can provide relief from such symptoms. We will work with individuals in need or with entire police, fire, and emergency medical response departments, including hospitals, to set up decompression rooms with therapy dogs inside to assist those in need.

We are also aware of the toll this crisis has taken on the economy, and if you find yourself in need of assistance, we will work with you or your department on a sliding scale providing the lowest price possible for these services, and we will also allow payment plans to be utilized.

Fetch and More is devoted to developing and promoting the human-animal bond, and right now, that bond has never been more important.

For more information on this type of work, see the articles below.

Please email jb@fetchandmore.com or call 201.914.8268 for further assistance. We will be providing this service throughout the country.